Is Big Pharma Hiding Data?

By ACSH Staff — February 11, 2013

Paul Howard and Josh Bloom, Medical Progress Today Spotlight Feature "Is Big Pharma Hiding Data? [1]"

Over the last few decades, the pharmaceutical industry has produced an astounding number of medicines and treatments that have extended life and improved quality of life. It's also perpetually a target of criticism for everything from profiteering to allegedly concealing damaging information about the safety or efficacy of new medicines. The industry is certainly not perfect and has made its share of mistakes. But far too often, its critics ignore the scientific and regulatory challenges facing the industry...[Read more [1]].